an Israeli born artist, is currently living and creating in Owings Mills, Maryland. An award-winning artist, she is recognized as one of today's leading Judaica artists. Her artwork is an unusual technique of fiber composition and fiber sculptures.

Claudine Davison, Art Coordinator for the JCC, comments on Smadar's art, "it is refreshing to see a Jewish artist discover a new style of art in which to incorporate Jewish themes. We have the tendency to think that everything's been done under the sun in Judaica...And here is this young artist who has found a new, exciting way to express a feeling and a mood. She's like a new bud blooming in the Jewish art world. She is part of a group of artists who have chosen to express their Jewish identity through their artwork and she has found yet another way to do it." From Baltimore Jewish Times

Smadar Livne's painting inspired by the classic teachings of Jewish spirituality, reflect exquisite artwork on major themes of Jewish Mysticism, Kabbalah, and Hasidism. In her magnificent work of art, Smadar captures in great depth the esoteric spirit of the Kabbalistic Divine Presence, the Shekhinah. Her artistic work in the symbolism of Kabbalah represents a sensitive and exceptional talent, and it is therefore, a timely accomplishment in Jewish Art. *Shimon Shokek, PhD Professor of Jewish Philosophy and Kabbalah.
